BCRA Publications: Copyright Issues

As you may know, BCRA is investigating the possibility of making the content of our magazines – Speleology and Cave & Karst Science – available on our web site. For Cave & Karst Science there will be the option (eventually) for subscribers to opt out of receiving the paper copy, for a saving in the subscription fee. Archiving our publications in this way also makes them more accessible to future generations.

Before we can go ahead with this plan, we need to obtain permission from you – as an author or contributor – to reproduce your material in this way.

We would therefore be most grateful if you could contact us (by email or post) to indicate your acceptance of the following copyright licensing agreement. A simple “yes, I agree. Ref: licence_060904_dg1.doc”, emailed to copyright@bcra.org.uk will be sufficient.

Please note that if you do not reply to this letter, we will be unable to use your material in our electronic publications. They will therefore be published with a blank space where your contribution would otherwise appear. If you would like more information, please visit our web page at bcra.org.uk / copyright.

Contributor's copyright licensing agreement for BCRA publications

1. I agree to license my contribution to BCRA's publications in accordance with the copyright licensing statement...

It is the author's responsibility to obtain copyright clearance for any third-party material submitted. Copyright of text, photos, and graphics that appear in this journal will not be assigned to the Association but the Association shall retain, in perpetuity, a non-exclusive licence to reproduce this journal in any medium. This licence shall extend to the separate publication of individual articles in the work, (and, for Cave & Karst Science, to BCRA's licensing of the content of the journal to database and library services) but not to any other use of the author's material.

2. I agree that this licence will apply to all my previous contributions to BCRA's publications.
3. I agree that this licence will apply to all my future contributions to BCRA's publications, unless I state otherwise at the time of submission of my work.

Thank you for your assistance in this matter.
